

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are illiterate has increased from 500 million to 700 million.

It is not only the illiterate who are at risk of being left behind. The world's population is growing rapidly, and the number of people who are poor is increasing.

By the year 2025, the world's population is expected to reach 8 billion. In 2000, there were 6 billion people in the world.

At the same time, the number of people who are poor is increasing. In 2000, there were 1 billion people who were poor.

By the year 2025, it is expected that there will be 2 billion people who are poor.

This is a very serious problem. We need to find ways to help these people.

One way to help is to provide them with education. Education can help people to find better jobs and to improve their lives.

Another way to help is to provide them with healthcare. Healthcare can help people to live longer and healthier lives.

There are many other ways to help these people. We need to work together to find solutions.

It is our responsibility to help these people. We need to act now.

Let's work together to make a better world for everyone.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are poor has increased from 1.2 billion to 1.6 billion.

There are a number of reasons why the number of people in the world who are poor has increased. One reason is that the world's population has grown rapidly.

Another reason is that the world's economy has not grown fast enough to create enough jobs for all the people who are looking for work.

A third reason is that the world's resources are being used up too fast, and this is making it harder for people to find the things they need to live.

There are many other reasons why the number of people in the world who are poor has increased. But the most important one is that the world's leaders have not done enough to help the poor people of the world.

It is time for the world's leaders to do more to help the poor people of the world. They should create more jobs, and they should use the world's resources more wisely.

Only then can we hope to reduce the number of people in the world who are poor.

The world's leaders have a responsibility to help the poor people of the world. They should do more to help them, and they should do it now.
